“welcomes the Labour Administration’s decision to instigate a review of the government inspector-approved 70,000 housing target number in the Core Strategy.

Council notes the initial findings from the Strategic Housing Market Assessment (SHMAA) and recognises that, in line with national guidance, it will take some time before the revised numbers can be used to take planning decisions.

Council recognises the milestone made in submitting the Site Allocation Plan for examination in public and the importance that this process has in strengthening the ability to resist inappropriate planning applications, which cause anger and frustration in many areas of the city.

Council therefore calls on all political groups to put the clear interests of the city and our residents first and support the Site Allocations Plan.”
