The making of the strategy

29-30 What the most difficult words mean

Welcome from the Co-Chairs of the Learning Disability Partnership Board

As the co-chairs of the Leeds Learning Disability Partnership Board, we are delighted to introduce our updated 'Being Me'.

People's Parliament Co-Chairs

Councillor Adam Ogilvie

This strategy is an exciting plan for Leeds and must lead to real changes for people with learning disabilities. It must be challenging but achievable with the money we have available.

We are particularly proud of this strategy because everything in it has come directly from people with learning disabilities and their families.

It will help coordinate all the hard work done by different organisations in Leeds and build upon all the great work that already goes on in Leeds.

Our strategy encourages everyone to think about what's strong, not what's wrong. This means we focus on what people can do, not what they can't do and support them to link in with their communities and neighbourhoods.

We need to make sure our strategy includes everyone and no one is left out.

Some people with learning disabilities have extra health and support needs so the strategy must work for these people too

- People who have severe or multiple disabilities
- People who may have challenging behaviours
- People who may need extra support with things other than their learning disability such as autism or their mental health.

The strategy also recognises that people with learning disabilities are all different (just like everybody else), they may have a different

- ethnicity
- religion
- gender identity
- sexuality

We do not have a separate section in the strategy about family carers. This is because every section will make a difference to family carers too.

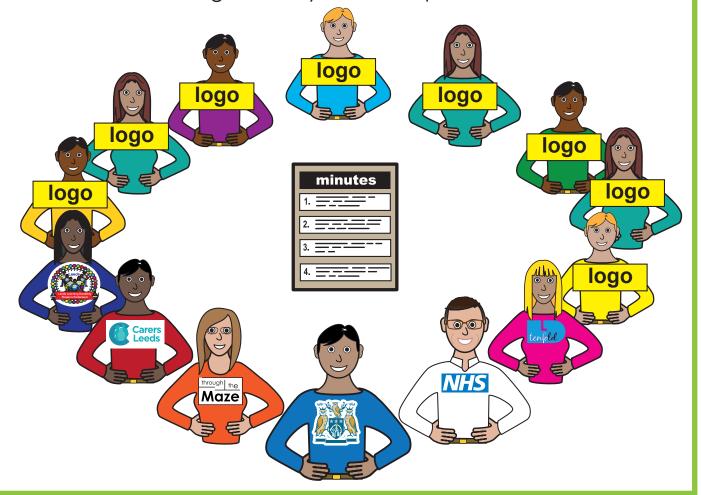

There is only one version of this strategy. It is important that everyone is able to work from the same document and is involved in everything that we do.

The most difficult words in the strategy are underlined.

You can look up what they mean at the back.

We would like to thank everybody who made this strategy possible; people with learning disabilities, their families, advocates, voluntary sector partners and all the other members of the Leeds Learning Disability Partnership Board.

Together, we are the Leeds Learning Disability Partnership Board!

Our big goal is for Leeds to be the best city to live in for people with learning disabilities.

The main jobs of the Learning Disability Partnership Board are:

- to make sure that people with learning disabilities are involved in making decisions which affect their lives
- to check that people have the right services and that good quality support is in place
- to share information about the different things happening in Leeds

The Learning Disability Partnership Board is made up of many people like:

- people with learning disabilities
- family carers
- voluntary sector partners
- Leeds City Council
- NHS

What is the Leeds Learning Disability Partnership Board Strategy?

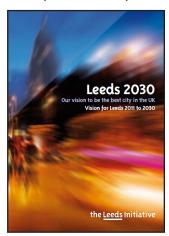

This strategy is our big plan for Leeds for the next 3 years. It builds on all the achievements of our last Being Me strategy and all that has already been achieved by people with learning disabilities, family carers and staff across the Council, NHS and voluntary sector partners.

Our strategy doesn't talk about everything we do. It focuses on what we think are the most important things to do to improve the lives of people with learning disabilities in Leeds.

This strategy links in with some important strategies in Leeds

Better Lives Strategy
(2017 to 2021)

What is the Leeds Learning Disability Partnership Board Strategy?

There are 3 main areas that people with learning disabilities said are important to them:

1.being well

2. being safe

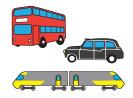

3. being social travel employment

Key principles

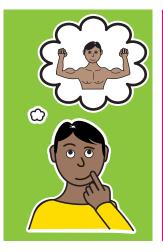

- I am an equal citizen of Leeds
- I am an individual and should be treated as an individual
- I have the right to make choices and live my life the way I choose
- I have up to date information that is easy to understand and helps me make choices
- I am as independent as possible
- I am part of a strong community
- I have strengths and I am supported to use them
- I receive good support when I need it

Key principles

What's strong (not what's wrong!)

All of our principles use a strengths-based approach. This is a new way of thinking and working to support people.

It is about:

- looking at what people can do, not what they can't do
- linking people in with their local communities and neighbourhoods
- helping people to take control of their lives
- supporting people to be the best they can be

What we know

There are about 1.4 million people with learning disabilities in the United Kingdom.

Here are some facts about what life is like for them.

On average, we know that:

 People with learning disabilities do not live as long people as people who don't have a learning disability and lots of these early deaths could be prevented. (NHS Digital, 2017)

 65 of every 100 people with learning disabilities would like a paid job, but only 6 have one. (NHS Digital, 2016)

 7 in 10 people with learning disabilities have experienced some kind of hate crime in the United Kingdom. (Dimensions UK Autism and Learning Disability hate crime survey, 2016)

Achievements so far

We have worked very hard over the last 3 years on the last Being Me strategy.

Here are some of our biggest achievements:

Safe Places.

We have signed up over 200 places to become Safe Places including hospitals, chemists, shops and banks. We also have a new Safe Places mobile phone app.

Good Lives Leaders.

There are now 17 people with learning disabilities and family carers who who visit people living in accommodation services and check people with learning disabilities have a good life there. So far they have visited over 80 services and 24 providers.

Independent Travel Training.

The Independent Travel Training scheme for adults has been running for over 2 years. Between 2016 and 2017, 41 adults with learning disabilities were successfully trained. Travel training is also available to people with learning disabilities through some of our voluntary sector partners.

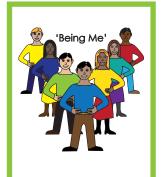

Achievements so far

We have worked very hard over the last 3 years on the last Being Me strategy.

Hospital Passports.

Lots of people with learning disabilities have filled out a hospital passport. In accommodation services, 94% of people with learning disabilities filled out their hospital passport in 2017.

Being Me Project.

In 2012, adult social care started Stage 1 of the Being Me Project which focuses on people's strengths. The project looks at how to better support people with learning disabilities who are new referrals, moving into adulthood or are in crisis.

being well

Main Priorities

I am supported to have good health

- I am able to exercise regularly and I have choice about the activities I do to keep fit
- I have the right support and information I need to eat healthily

I am supported to access the right services to keep me healthy

- I receive a good quality annual health check and health action plan
- I attend the right national screening programmes
- I know about cancer and how to check myself
- I am confident visiting health services like the doctors, chemist, dentist, optician and podiatrist when I need to

I have good communication with health experts and I receive reasonable adjustments when I need them

- I am always listened to
- the information they give me is easy for me to understand

image needed

What are reasonable adjustments?

Reasonable adjustments are changes that have been made to a service so that people with learning disabilities can use them like anyone else.

This may mean having a longer appointment time, easy to understand information or other changes that mean services are easier to use.

Health Promotion

We will have more information available around staying healthy that is easy to understand. We will explore how new technology can help us with this.

Support for Providers

We will make sure that Adults and Health and voluntary sector providers have the information they need to support people to stay healthy. We want providers to

- sign up to the Health Charter
- know how to support people to access different screening programmes and know about cancer and how to check themselves

What is the Health Charter?

This is a paper made by Public Health England that social care staff can sign up to. By signing up, social care providers promise to do things to support people with learning disabilities to be as healthy as possible.

Signposting

We will make sure that more people with learning disabilities know about the different health services available to them.

Checking Health Services

More people with learning disabilities and their families will be involved in saying if a health service is doing well and where they need to improve to better support people with learning disabilities.

Main Priorities

I am protected against all forms of hate and mate crime

I know what to do if I feel unsafe, in particular:

- in the evening
- on public transport
- online

I am more involved in checking if the different services I use are good enough and saying how to make them better, they include:

- residential services
- day services
- community groups and voluntary sector providers

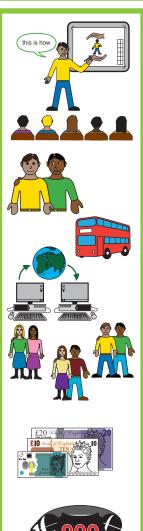

Good Lives Leaders

We will expand the successful Good Lives Leaders scheme so that more residential and day services are checked by people with learning disabilities and their families.

Safe Places

We will promote the Safe Places scheme and support people to use the Safe Places app. We will sign up more places to be Safe Places especially places open in the evening.

Personal Safety Training

We will continue to make more personal safety training available to people with learning disabilities.

The training will include things like:

- how to deal with hate and mate crime
- staying safe on public transport
- staying safe on the internet
- staying safe when meeting people
- being in safe relationships
- keeping your money safe
- how to report a crime

I receive good support

I have an active social life which includes the evenings and weekends

I have the information I need to get involved in the activities on offer in Leeds

I am supported to make and keep friends and have relationships

I am supported to explore my sexuality and gender identity

Good Support

We will explore what good support looks like in more detail. People with learning disabilities will check that good support is happening.

Adults and Health will start Stage 2 of the Being Me Project and it will focus on a number of things to help achieve good support.

Flexible Support

We will explore new and creative ways to support people out of normal support hours so they can get involved in more activities in the evening and at weekends.

We will support people to find more more flexible support options through

- personal budgets
- individual service funds
- providers working together
- possible shared support

Peer Support

We will help people with learning disabilities set up more peer support groups in their local community. This will help people be more independent and have more choice over:

- what activities they do
- when they do them
- who with

Signposting

We will share more information that is easy to understand about the activities that are already on offer in Leeds. This information will be shared:

- in public places
- in the local community
- on social media

Relationships

We will make sure that all people with learning disabilities are supported to have relationships including sexual ones if they want to. We will remove the things that stop people getting support around their gender identity and sexuality by:

- having more open conversations and sharing accessible information around LGBT+ and sex in general
- supporting services who work with LGBT+ people
- developing stronger links with existing LGBT+ groups in the city

Social Task Group

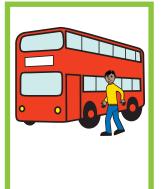

We will set up a task group that will include people with learning disabilities, family carers and voluntary sector partners. They will share information and make sure that we are doing what we said we would.

I feel confident getting around on my own on foot or using public transport so I can:

- visit my family and friends
- go to the doctors or hospital
- go to the gym or leisure centre
- get involved in different activities
- go to work

More Training

We will continue to promote independent travel training schemes.

We will make sure that transport services and their staff (like bus and taxi drivers) know how to better support people with learning disabilities.

Technology

We will explore how travel apps can support people with learning disabilities get around in Leeds. We will also train people on how to use them.

Travel Champions

We will set up a group of travel champions who can support other people with learning disabilities to travel on their own.

The travel champions will also work with transport services to help them improve travel for people with learning disabilities in Leeds.

I have the chance to experience the world of work.

I am supported to get involved in things like:

- volunteering
- work placements
- paid employment
- starting a business

I have the skills I need to help me find a job and keep it

I feel valued by local employers and they appreciate my individual skills and strengths

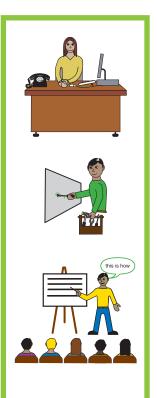

Better Connection with Local Employers

We will look at developing a group of inclusive employers who can support people with learning disabilities to find employment. We will expand and better coordinate the employment marketplace event so local employers and people with learning disabilities can connect and learn from each other

Stage 2 of the Being Me Project

Adults and Health will start Stage 2 of the Being Me Project. It will look at what Adults and Health can do to support people with learning disabilities find employment opportunities

Skills for Work

We will give people with learning disabilities more training so they can find the right job for them and keep it.

Training will include things like:

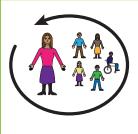

- how to find a job
- how to write about what you are good at
- what to say at interviews

Experts by Experience

We will speak to more people with learning disabilities about their experiences of the world of work. This will help services and employers to better support people with learning disabilities find the right job and keep it.

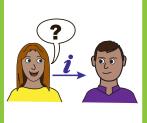

People with learning disabilities who have work experience could also support other people with learning disabilities to find work and give them advice.

Employment Task Group

We will bring together people with learning disabilities, family carers, local employers and other organisations in Leeds to work on our actions under employment.

It will be a good place to share information, build partnerships and coordinate our efforts in the city.

How will we check things are happening?

 We will develop an action plan for each theme that says what we will do, who will do it and when.

 Each theme will have a lead and a co-chair who will be someone with learning disabilities. Together they will help co-ordinate the action plan and make sure we are doing what we said we would in the strategy.

 We will have a special Learning Disability Partnership Board meeting at the end of the year where we share the strategy's progress and say what we need to do next.

 We will make sure that our strategy links to other Council and health plans across Leeds.

The making of the strategy

People with learning disabilities have been involved at every stage of making the strategy including the design. In February 2018, we organised a co-design event with Easy on the i to come up with ideas for how the strategy should look.

A special thanks to our strategy co-design team: Daniel, Leanne, Em, David, Janet, Kalwant and Annette
